Warnings:

Ensure screws are firm but not overtightened. Check periodically.
Bassinet must be located on a level surface at all times.
Use the castor locks to prevent accidental movement.

Important Note

The maximum weight that the bassinet will carry is 9Kg .
However, once your child has reached 4-6 months, he/she should be moved to a cot.

1 Prepare end panel

Start by placing one end panel on a clean, soft work surface.
Make sure the panel faces the same way up as in the diagram.

This side must face up to start.

2 Assemble the support bars

Screw each support bar to the end panel. To assist in holding them into position, they have 2 wooden pegs at each end. The 4 bars are identical, but they must go on as shown. You may need to turn them upside down to ensure they go on the right way.

3 Fit the remaining end panel

Put the second end panel into position, line up the holes, and fasten to the support bars and support rails.

4 Connect castor wheels

Push the castor wheels into the holes in the bottom of the rails. Ensure they click into place.

5 Turn bassinet upright and lock castors

Lock the castors by pushing the lever downwards.

6

Prepare the bassinet

Prepare the bassinet for fitting to the frame. Note the location of the velcro strips on the bassinet and frame.

7

Fit the bassinet into the frame

Put the bassinet inside the frame. Use the velcro strips at the end to temporarily hold the bassinet in place.

8

Pull bassinet holding sleeves through top of frame

Feed the bassinet sleeves through the gap between the support bars. Ensure the loop is clear of the bassinet. This will allow you to insert the holding rods in the next step. You may need to loosen off the velcro for this step.

Pull the sleeves through until the loop is clear of the frame.

9

Fit holding rods

Feed the holding rods into the bassinet loops. This will hold the bassinet securely into place.

10

Fit the base and mattress

Place the firm base and mattress into the bassinet.

Note: as you push down on the mattress you will hear the velcro on the ends of the bassinet stretching. This is normal. The velcro at the ends is only to keep the bassinet looking neat. The weight of the bassinet is held by the support rails and holding rods which are very secure.

Your bassinet is now complete and ready to use.

Warnings:

Ensure screws are firm but not overtightened. Check periodically.
Bassinet must be located on a level surface at all times.
Use the castor locks to prevent accidental movement.

Important Note

The maximum weight that the bassinet will carry is 9Kg .
However, once your child has reached 4-6 months, he/she should be moved to a cot.
